Read the passage again: THE NEW SCHOOL LIBRARY

When Chinedu entered his school's new library, he was surprised by how different it looked from the old room. There were shelves filled with storybooks, science books and atlases. Near the window, there was a quiet reading area with comfortable chairs. A large noticeboard displayed recommendations from students. Chinedu picked up a book about animals in Africa. At first, he wanted to return it because some of the words were unfamiliar. Instead, he read the sentences around the difficult words and used the pictures to help him understand. After reading several pages, Chinedu discovered that the book was easier to understand than he had expected. Before leaving the library, he wrote the title of the book in his notebook so that he could continue reading it the next day.

Answer in full sentences

1. What was different about the new library?

2. What kind of book did Chinedu choose?

3. What problem did he experience while reading?

4. What strategy did he use to solve the problem?

5. Why did Chinedu write the book's title in his notebook?

6. What can you learn from Chinedu's approach to reading?

Remember: STOP — THINK — CHECK. Good readers reread when something is not clear.
